SPECIAL ISSUE : THE JOURNAL OF MIND AND BEHAVIOR

The Pepper Papers

This collection of papers was presented at the Root Metaphor Conference, an interdisciplinary symposium, May 1982, SUNY at Buffalo. The Root Metaphor Conference was the first ever held on the overall work of Stephen C. Pepper (1891-1972), whose writings in metaphilosophy, value theory, definitions and aesthetics have grown to be a vital source for researchers in many disciplines. Pepper's thought has shown to be already in use in many fields, and it does appear that more and more researchers are realizing the nature of the creative tension between cognitive adequacy and the metaphorical underpinning of theory that Pepper set forth and organized into his own theory.
